

DE VALERA IS DEFEATED FOR RE-ELECTION BY DAIL

BUZZELL TAKES ALL BLAME FOR BANK SHORTAGE

Note Found in Safe; Shortage May Be
Over $40,000.

A note, addressed, "To Whom it May Concern," signed by Arthur Buzzell, former Dixon man, missing cashier of the First State Bank of Lyndon, was found in the big safe of the bank when it finally yielded to the efforts of state bank examiners and was opened Saturday. In that note Mr. Buzzell assumed all responsibility for the mis-use of bank funds, acknowledging his guilty and confessing that he had spent the money. The note was:

"To Whom it May Concern: I exonerate the president and directors of all blame. I alone am guilty of it all. I took the money and used it."

$50,000 Shortage?
While state bank examiners and officials of the bank, who have not completed their probe, refuse to discuss the extent of the shortage in the bank funds, Lyndon people who are close to bank officers say it is expected the shortage will amount to between $40,000 and $50,000.

It is stated on good authority that the examinations have shown that Buzzell's alleged peculations continued over a period of several months and that they were covered by his juggling figures on the bank's books.

President Charges Forgery.

President William Shaw has stated that he has learned that Buzzell also forged his (Shaw's) name to several checks and notes, but the amount which it is alleged the young cashier raised in this manner has not been given out.

When the big safe was opened Saturday it was found that the time lock had been set for 48-hour release by the cashier before he closed the bank Thursday afternoon, the day of his disappearance. The note was placed where it could easily be seen and about $800 in cash, the bank's business of Thursday, was found intact near the front of the safe. Securities, etc. in the rear of the safe are said to be missing, and it is also charged that a number of Liberty Bonds, left at the bank by depositors for safe keeping, are also missing.

Not Sufficient Funds.

From a supposedly authoritative source it is reported that the discovery of Buzzell's alleged peculations was threatened last Tuesday when a check for $2,000 issued in a land deal, was presented at the bank for cashing, and there were not sufficient funds in the bank to pay it. On the same day State Auditor Russell issued a call for a report by all state banks on the condition of business at the close of business, Dec. 31, and the two circumstances are believed by Buzzell's friends to have caused his resolution to flee.

It is also reported by Lyndon citizens that a number of the heavier depositors of the bank had withdrawn their accounts during the past several weeks, the number of new automobiles the new cashier had acquired during the past few years being given by one as his reason for withdrawing his funds.

Had Appeared Melancholy.

President Shaw has stated that prior to the holidays he had been away from Lyndon for a considerable period, and that on his return he noticed that Buzzell had appeared to be melancholy on several occasions, but since the cashier had not mentioned ill health or worries of any kind he had not mentioned it.

Up until noon today no word had been received from Buzzell by any of his friends or relatives and no trace of him had been obtained by officials. It was stated that no warrant had been issued for his arrest at that hour.

MEMBER DIXON LAIR M. O. S. IN CHICAGO LODGE

Attended Big Meeting
Corregidor Lair
Saturday Eve.

J. Wiley Waters of Cascabel lair, Military Order of Serpents of Dixon, was a guest of honor at the "regular crawl" of Corregidor Lair No. 1 at their hall, 180 W. Washington street, Chicago, Saturday night, and he heard some very complimentary things said of the meeting of the order during the U. S. W. V. convention in Dixon last June.

At this meeting Harld Ward, now City Clerk of Sterling, a former Dixon newspaper man, was taken into honorary membership, and at the same time he was made an honorary member of William McKinley Camp, No. 5, U. S. W. V., the largest camp of veterans of the Spanish-American War in the United States. McKinley Camp is a merger of Waldron-Murphy, Philippines, McKinley, Federal McGrew and Capron camps, and honorary membership in the two organizations was conferred on Mr. Ward for his services to the government in training men for military service, in which he could not himself take active part, and as an honor to the Sterling Lady Zouaves, of which he has been originator and drill master, and who have appeared at all U. S. W. V. conventions since their organization, furnishing wonderful drills for the entertainment of the veterans.

Diamond Dyes is Half Century Old

Somebody out of touch with truth, once said there is no sentiment in business. Another greater in wisdom, declared "They profit most who serve best."

All this year a concern that helped put Burlington, Vermont, on the map of national business, is celebrating fifty years of successful service of the womanhood of the world. "Diamond Dyes" is half a century old and they are having a series of happy episodes to make the anniversary a noteworthy one.

"Diamond Dyes" is a heroic example of the power of advertising, for the plant of small beginnings now covers a city block. The business was built on "making good" the advertising that has made "Diamond Dyes" a household. Possibly the greatest asset of this proved aid to economy, is the good-will of families that run thru generations. Young women tell that their mothers and grandmothers before them, were Diamond Dye enthusiasts. They like the Diamond "service plan" which makes it clear that for a few cents it is easy to "dye old things new."

The Wells & Richardson people are going to make the golden jubilee of Diamond Dyes nation wide. They will do this by the biggest newspaper advertising appropriation ever made in the fifty years of service.

SETTLEMENT IN SHOE FACTORY STRIKE MAY BE REACHED TUESDAY

Representative of Head
Officers of Company
in This City.

There were no new developments in the strike of the cutters at the Dixon plant of the Brown Shoe Co. this morning, the majority of the men still remaining idle. An open meeting was held yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock at which time, plans for attempting a reconciliation were made. A committee of the striking cutters will meet with Superintendent Watkins and discuss plans for the resumption of operations in this department.

John Pink, chief quality representative from the head offices at St. Louis, is in the city and, it is understood, will remain until the trouble is settled. The cutters left their benches last Wednesday and this morning it was reported that many of them were willing to return to work and accept the cut, instead of continuing the strike.

May Result Seriously.

It was also rumored that the head offices at St. Louis had been informed of the situation here and that the strike of probably 35 men might result seriously for the employees of the local plant. While no statement was given out from the local offices, it was rumored that in case other departments of the factory closed in sympathy with the striking cutters, that there was a grave possibility of the closing down of the entire Dixon plant for an indeterminate period. It is said that two other plants of the Brown chain of factories located at Moberly, Mo., and Brookfield, Ill., are now closed down for an indefinite time, because of similar labor troubles, where other departments have walked out in sympathy with the strikers.

It is expected that the disagreement will be cleared up probably by tomorrow morning and that the greater number of cutters will go back to their benches. However, if the condition continues to exist, it is said that plans have been made to supply the Dixon plant with stock cut at other Brown factories.

TOO MANY DELILAH'S SPOIL SAMSON'S HAIRCUT

PIONEER OF AMBOY PASSED AWAY THERE SATURDAY MORNING

DeForest Shaw, 70, is Called; Mrs. Swain
Passed Away.

Special to The Telegraph
Amboy, Ill., Jan. 9.—DeForest Shaw, son of Henry and Jane Waldron Shaw, early pioneers of Amboy and Lee county, was born at Binghampton in Amboy township, Dec. 17, 1851, being one of the first white children born in this vicinity, and died at the Amboy hospital Saturday morning, Jan. 7th, 1922, at the age of 70 years. Mr. Shaw followed the business of farming for many years successfully and later engaged in the lumber and coal business, being the senior member of the firm of Shaw & Bates.

Later he retired from the firm and went to farming again south of Amboy. A few years ago he sold out the farm and retired from active business life. About six months ago he became affected with a growth on the side of his face, which later developed into cancer of the orbit and while all that could be done by skillful physicians and friends was done, it proved of no avail and he quietly passed on.

His father, mother, one brother and his wife have preceded him in death, leaving to mourn his loss, two sisters: Olive A. Everts of Amboy, Mrs. Madeleine Dietrich of Spencer, Iowa. Six brothers—William, Chauncey and Charles of Amboy, Arthur of California, Wilfred of Lonsdale, Ill., and Everett of Fairchild, Wis. Funeral services will be held at the Vaughn funeral home on Tuesday afternoon, Jan. 10, 1922, at 2 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Bayley of the Methodist church and interment will be made in Prairie Repose cemetery at Amboy.

MRS. ABI SWAIN.

Mrs. Abi Swain, a well known resident of Dixon and Sterling for many years, died at the Amboy hospital Saturday morning following an operation for tumor. She had been visiting her son, James R. Swain, who resides on the Sam Long farm, south of Amboy and while there became ill and an operation was decided upon, but unfortunately the result was fatal and her spirit passed on beyond. Mrs. Swain was 54 years of age.

Her sudden death comes as a great shock to the family and to her many friends who sympathize with the family. Her husband preceded her in death some years ago, leaving two sons, James R. Swain of Amboy and Oliver Swain of Nelson and an adopted daughter, Mrs. Edwin L. Frohish of San Antonio, Texas, to mourn the loss of a devoted mother.

Funeral services will be held from the Vaughn funeral home on Tuesday morning, Jan. 10, at 10 o'clock, conducted by Rev. Bayley, pastor of the Methodist church of Amboy and interment will be made in Prairie Repose cemetery.

CHANGES MIND; WILL TAKE HIS SHARE OF COIN

Youth Who Refused
Millions Decides He'll Accept It.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Boston, Jan. 9.—Charles Garland, who more than a year ago announced his refusal to accept a legacy of $1,000,000 offered to him by his father, the late James A. Garland, of this city, has reconsidered his decision and will accept the money, according to the Boston Post. His brother Hamilton, who likewise declined a legacy of equal proportions, has accepted his share of the family fortune, the Post declares. Garland, who lives with his mother and two brothers in a tumble-down farm house at North Carver, Mass., declined, the Post said, to discuss the reasons for reversing his decision.

Charles, in declining this inheritance last year, condemned a system which starved thousands while hundreds were stuffed.

"It is such a system that offers me a million dollars," he then said. "It is blind to the simplest truth known to every child, the truth that the hungry should be fed and the naked clothed. I have had to choose between a loss of private property and the law which is written in every human heart. I choose the one which I believe to be the true."

Hamilton withdrew from Harvard college last year in his sophomore year, giving as the reason that he was not getting enough out of college life. According to the Post he was secretly married soon after and he is now the father of a two week old child. Hamilton is 21 years of age, and his brother, Charles, who also is married, is the father of a one-year-old daughter, is 23.

A third brother, James A., accepted his share of the estate last year, without comment.

SELLERS OF HOCH WHICH CAUSES DEATH TO BE PROSECUTED

Cook Co. Coroner Says
They Must Be Held
for Murder.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Chicago, Jan. 9.—Four moonshine deaths within 18 hours, two by violence, resulted in Coroner Peter Hoffman today asking Chief of Police Fitzmorris to instruct the police department that in each death where there is a possibility of illegal liquor having been the leading cause especially search shall be made for the seller and that he be arrested.

"Moonshiners must answer for murder," Coroner Hoffman said. "I intend to recommend to juries conducting inquests in moonshine deaths that the sellers of the liquor, when known, be held to the grand jury without bail on charges of murder."

This procedure, the coroner said, would not only ensue in cases of murder, but also in deaths from automobile accidents, acute alcoholism, or others where moonshine was the cause. The coroner also declared that records in his office showed an increase in violent deaths from 2,117 in 1920 to 2,245 in 1921, and that he believed the heavy increase was due largely to poison whiskey.

The tragedies which aroused the coroner's ire were the shooting of moonshine-crazed Harry Aitschback by his wife, Bertha, 52 years old, the stabbing to death of Mrs. Lillian Condon by her husband, Michael, who came home intoxicated, and the deaths of Stephen Conly and Louis Durabond from drinking poison liquor.

LIMITATION OF AIRCRAFT HELD IMPOSSIBLE NOW

Powers Decide Would Stop Commercial Development.

Washington, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—Limitation of armament of aircraft is impossible at this time, the five powers armament committee of the Washington conference decided today. It adopted a resolution, however, providing for an international commission to study the aircraft question with a view to future limitation.

The committee adopted substantially the report of its sub-committee, which found that to place a limit on aircraft in warfare it would retard commercial development. The committee, in taking a stand favorable to a study with a view to future action, adopted resolutions providing for a commission, to comprise aviation and other technical as well as legal experts, to study the whole problem and report at some future indefinite time.

Other questions relating to armament went over until tomorrow at which time it is expected the technical experts will be prepared to submit their report on the naval reduction program and other remaining details.

NEWBERRY ON FLOOR OF SENATE PROTESTS INNOCENCE OF WRONG

Makes Impassioned Denial of Charges Against Him.

By Associated Press Leased Wire
Washington, Jan. 9.—A sweeping declaration of his innocence was made by Senator Newberry, Republican, of Michigan, today in the senate.

Taking the floor for his own defense in the ouster proceedings brought by Henry Ford, the defeated democratic candidate, Senator Newberry emphatically denied personal knowledge of the collection or expenditure of the large campaign fund spent in his behalf.

"As God is my witness, I am not to this day and hour conscious of having done, in connection either the primary campaign or the general election of 1918, in the state of Michigan, "Senator Newberry said, "a single act that was, or is, in any way unlawful, dishonorable, or corrupt, and this I say to the Senate of the United States without reservation or qualification."

"Upon these facts, as I then believed them to be, and as I now believe them to be, I shall abide the result with a clear conscience," Mr. Newberry added in a dramatic conclusion of his proposed address. At the outset, he asked that he be not interrupted until he concluded his prepared address.

"Is Time to Speak"

"I cannot remain silent any longer during the considering of my right to represent the state of Michigan as one of its senators," he said. "I did not volunteer to appear before the committee of the Senate which took testimony in this matter, because I really had no information that would assist in the investigation of the charges, filed by my opponent. It seems to me that the time has come to speak, because my silence might be misunderstood by my friends."

"On the sixth day of June, 1917, I was commissioned a Lieutenant Commander in the United States Navy and on July 23, 1917, I was assigned to the Third Naval District, with headquarters in the Brooklyn Navy Yard. I immediately took up my duties there and from that day, July 23, 1917, until after the signing of the Armistice, Nov. 11, 1918, I was never in Michigan a single hour. • • • The primary election and the general elections of 1918 occurred during my absence from the state of Michigan."

Was Urged to Run
"In the early fall of 1917, I began to receive visits and letters from men active in public and political affairs in Michigan, urging me to become a candidate on the Republican ticket for United States Senator."

While I was considering whether or not it was my duty to become a candidate for the U. S. Senate in the November election in 1918, I said to Allen Templeton, a citizen of Detroit, who was actively engaged in a large industry in which I am a stockholder and who was also president of the Detroit Board of Commerce, that if I should decide to become a candidate, I hoped it would meet with the approval of by Detroit business friends and associates, and that I trusted the business men might be looked after by the campaign men of that description. This is as far as I had any direct connection with the selection of the committee of business men whose management of the campaign in my behalf I shall remember with gratitude as long as I shall live.

DOUBLE DEFEAT FOR PRESIDENT IN TREATY FIGHT

Resigned When Treaty Was Ratified and Lost His Job.

BULLETIN.

Dublin, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—The motion to re-elect Eamonn de Valera president of the Irish Republic, was defeated in the Dail Eireann today by a vote of 58 to 60.

Dublin, Jan. 9.—(By the Associated Press.)—As soon as the Dail Eireann was convened this morning, Eamonn de Valera arose and placed his resignation as president of the Irish Republic formally before the house. Michael Collins, one of the leaders in support of the Irish treaty which was ratified Saturday by a vote of 64 to 57, over Mr. De Valera's opposition, said that no one in the Dail wished to be put in the position of opposing President De Valera.

He pointed out that the Dail was now faced with the problem of taking over the government from the British and he suggested the formation of a committee, whose members would be chosen from both sides of the controversy to keep the peace. Work, and not talk, was now required, he added. Mrs. Thomas J. Clarke moved the reelection of Mr. De Valera as president of the republic. Liam Mellows seconded the motion.

Collins Had No Objection.

After the renomination of De Valera for the presidency Michael Collins said he would not object to the re-election of President De Valera, but if Mr. De Valera were re-elected the people would turn out the Dail as the laughing stock of the world.

George Gavan Duffy demanded that Mr. De Valera tell the Dail what his policy would be if he were re-elected.

Mr. De Valera replied that the republic must continue until the people, by an election disestablished it. He was ready during the interval, he said, to help maintain the independence of Ireland. He said that until the treaty was put into legislative form and worked out the people would not understand what it meant. He called the treaty, "only a vague promise." He challenged the supporters of the treaty to an election after the treaty was put into operation.

E. J. Hogan said the people had a right to decide immediately, and he asked for a speedy election.

John MacIntee of Monaghan argued that England had not yet given Ireland the constitution for the Free State, and that until the terms of the treaty were carried out the republican government must be continued. He urged keeping the resources of Ireland intact, so they could fight "if England lets us down."

Didn't Want Office.

John McKeown and Michael Collins both jumped up at this, shouting, "We will."

De Valera said that if he were re-elected no effort of his would be made to obtain a joint cabinet.

"I don't want the office at all," he declared.

Then looking at Griffith and Collins, he added:

"You have a majority with your sixty-four votes. Elect your own president."

A spirited tilt followed between William Cosgrave, a strong advocate of the treaty, and Mr. De Valera.

accept the active management of the campaign. The selection of Mr. King did not originate with me. It was not in any way arranged by me. I knew Mr. King, but slightly. My last contact with him had been in 1912, when we were political opponents. • • •

"In my judgment, Paul King is a man of the highest character and sterling integrity and when he had been selected as manager of the senate was done without the slightest knowledge on my part. I signed that ledger on my part, he insisted that before he would even accept, much less undertake to enter upon the work of the campaign, he should and must learn for himself, because of our difference in 1912, whether or not his management of the senatorial campaign would be entirely acceptable to me."

Only Mention of Money.

"He came to New York and we had a brief interview there. He did not discuss even indirectly a single detail of the campaign. I recall that during the conversation had at the time, Mr. King, in answer to a question as to how much it had cost the friends of Senator Townsend, whose campaign Mr. King had managed, said it had cost approximately $20,000, and added that in view of the situation the existing in Michigan, he thought it would cost my friends approximately $50,000 to make a comprehensive campaign."

DIXON BROKE EVEN WITH STERLING IN SATURDAY'S GAMES

Junior "B" Quintet is Defeated By "A's" Nosed Ahead.

Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock the Sterling Cadets, the class corresponding to the Junior Bs of the local association, met and defeated the Bs on the Dixon floor by a score of 8-6. During the first half the Dixon boys held the Cadets scoreless while they rang up two baskets. In the third quarter an entirely new team went on the floor for Dixon and then Sterling made three baskets and Dixon was scoreless.

The final quarter saw the original five back in their places and in this session each team made a ring. This is the first time that the Junior Bs have put a team in the field and played an outside five but they put up a good game and in time will make good players. A return game will be played at Sterling next Saturday afternoon and the boys say that Sterling won't have a look in.

"A" Team Won Game
After the Junior Bs were defeated the A's team went on and cleaned house with the Sterling Employed Boys, making it an even break for the day with Sterling. The final score was 16-12. This was by far the most exciting game of the day, especially the last quarter. Sterling started out with a rush and kept one basket ahead for most of three quarters although Dixon did their best to overcome this lead. In the last quarter the Dixon team was shifted about, a few changes in the lineup made and the score was soon tied. Then came a hot time. "Hainy" Glessner slipped a nice one from the side and Dixon was ahead and the fans went wild. Then Krott made a long one which tied the score and the Sterling fans whooped her up. Krott made another and Sterling went wilder still. Weimann tried for a goal from the center of the floor and he went in without touching the ring. By this time the timekeeper began to get his whistle ready while pandemonium reigned. Then in quick succession by fast team work Lowell slipped in two nice ones and the game was on ice for Dixon. The Junior A team will also go to Sterling next Saturday for a return game, and with the Y team playing the Rock Falls five in the evening makes three games that Dixon teams will play on the Sterling floor next Saturday.

STRAPHANGERS CINCH HONORS IN "A" SERIES

Katzies and Razzberries Tied for Second Place.

JUNIOR A TOURNAMENT

The Junior A basketball tournament is drawing to a close and the Straphangers are generally conceded to be the best, in fact they have clinched the pennant. They have a postponed series to play off though and this will take place Wednesday at the regular class period.

In the games Saturday the Straphangers hung another strap to their belts by warping the Razzberries 12-7. Capt. Krug, Weimann and Johnson, assisted by "Bud" Archer each made two baskets for the Straphangers, while for the Razzberries, "Roots" Forrester made two, "Nimble" Dick Forrester a free throw, "Casey" Buckingham a basket and Keller rendered general assistance all around.

Then came the Katzenjammers and by defeating the Hooglians 10-3 tied up with the Razzberries for second place in the tournament. For the Katzenjammers Capt. "Bill" Miller tossed in two baskets, Wilson did the same, Dick Lowell got one and Ed Miller and Doc Segner assisted. Capt. Glessner did all the scoring for the Hooglians rolling the pill through the hoop twice, once for a basket and once for a free throw. Reagan and Hoffmann assisted.

Referee: Segner.
Scorer: Hofmann and Weimann.

TWO GAMES ARE TIED IN JUNIOR "B" TOURNAMENT

Terriers Played Leaders to Standstill Saturday P. M.

Team	Won	Lost	Tied
Bull Dogs	8	0	1
Wolfhounds	6	3	0
Greyhounds	4	4	1
Foxhounds	3	5	1
Terriers	2	6	1
Souphounds	1	6	2

The teams in the Junior B tournament are beginning to tighten up all around and so three tie games have been the result, in the last two series. The most noteworthy game on Saturday was that in which the invincible Bull Dogs were played to a standstill by the Terriers who occupy a place near the cellar. The Terriers, captained by Rogers, went on the floor full of determination to down Capt. Kennedy's aggregation and after two slashing rounds the game had to be called a draw as neither side had scored a point. This is the first time that the Bull Dogs have done anything but win and this tie has put confidence in the other teams and from now on the Bull Dogs want to watch their scalp.

The second game of the series was another rattling contest. This time the Souphounds and the Foxhounds fought out another tie game but in this the Souphounds were 2-2, Sullivan and Buchner each making a basket.

The last game resulted in a victory for the Wolfhounds, Capt. Hilliker's gang, who nipped the Greyhounds 6-0. G. O'Malley and Rink were the point makers for the Wolfhounds.

Referee: Krug.
Scorer: Stothewar.

The two tie games will be fought out Thursday afternoon at 4:15, the Souphounds playing the Foxhounds and the Terriers the Bull Dogs.

GYMN CLASS FOR BUSINESS MEN'S SHOWING GAINS

Additional "Pep" is Evident Since New Year's.

Since the first of the year the Business Men's gym class has taken a new lease on life and things are booming compared to what they were. Tuesdays and Thursdays are tournament nights and almost without exception these matches are hotly contested. Every man who gets in the class is assigned to a team in the tournament, the "Sharks" playing Tuesdays and those not so far advanced on Thursdays. Wednesday and Fridays the gang have a short and snappy calisthenic drill of from 5 to 10 minutes followed and preceded by free-for-all volleyball games. In these games the men alternate straight volleyball with the spiked game, "Straight" game "spike" second game "straight" etc.

Saturday evening is also free-for-all volleyball but no calisthenics are given on this night. A thousand and one reasons can be given in favor of all men getting in the game and getting a little much-needed exercise, but not one against it. Many excuses are given but never a reason. Think it over.

ASSN. QUINTET IN FIRST GAME WEDNESDAY EVE

Will Tackle Sterling in Opener at Local Building.

There will be a double header on Wednesday night when the Intermediate basketball team will take on the Sterling Intermediate for the last of a three game series. Both the other games have been played on the Sterling floor, Sterling winning one and the other being a tie game. This time the Dixon team is determined to win and a fast game is expected. The other game of the evening will be the big battle and the first big game that the Dixon Y. M. C. A. has on its schedule. Their opponents will be the Sterling Y and rumor says they have a fast aggregation. Not much has been said about the regular Y team but they have been working quietly along, winning their share of games played and are developing into a fast and snappy bunch of basket tossers. The Wednesday game with Sterling will give them a taste of what they can or cannot do and nothing but a fast game is expected. Plans are for the team to attend the district Y. M. C. A. tournament which comes off in Aurora Feb. 25 and 26.

CHATS WITH YOUR GAS MAN.

The automobile has taught us a lot about the thing we call "depreciation." When some of us bought our first car for a thousand dollars, say, we kept track of the gasoline and oil we used and congratulated ourselves that the upkeep was not as bad as we had thought.

Pretty soon, however, we needed new tires and a few repairs—all maintenance expense. And then in about three years we got ashamed of the old rattle box and considered ourselves fortunate to sell it for $300. What became of the $700 difference? We charged it to depreciation.

The merchant has it in shelf-worn goods. The newspaper owner has it to the extent of about ten per cent annually on his plant. Your gas company has it in the wear and tear and breakage of mains, meters, machines and other apparatus.

It is by recognizing depreciation as a fixed charge that we are able to constantly substitute new equipment for old and so give you the service you demand.

CELEBRATED 75TH BIRTHDAY ANNIVERSARY—

(Contributed.)
Saturday, Jan. 7th, the whole Leake clan, residing in this part of the country, were invited to come and help D. C. Leake and wife celebrate at their beautiful home in Bluff Park, his 75th birthday anniversary.

It was a complete surprise for him. Most of the fifty-seven guests invited, came.

All enjoyed a sumptuous scramble dinner, after which a short program of readings were given, the last of which were the following lines given by Mrs. Preston Wolcott:

Today the whole Leake bunch have come,
Brother, nieces, nephews and all of the cousins, by gum!

From the large cities of Binghamton, South Dixon and Temperance Hill
From the little burgs of Amboy and Freeport they came with a will.

Big and little, from far and near,
Have come filled with mirth and cheer.

To help dear Uncle Chap celebrate the day of his birth.

For we all know the kindness and goodness he is worth.

There are some present who have the stomachache,
Alas! They know no better than to eat too much pickle and cake.

Unless these people their ways soon mend
They will soon come to some bad end

We can never help them with their 7th birthday
Unless they learn to diet before that day.

For Uncle Chap three score and ten year have passed and gone
Another five is added, and we hope before long.

We may all meet once more
And help him celebrate his four score

No tobacco, no booze did Uncle Chap ever use
Which accounts for his never having burned out his fuse

He has had a helpful, healthful, happy life
With Aunt Mary as his good wife

No deed of kindness has he left undone
No helpful word left unspoken, no poor has he shunned

If ever there lived a man whom we all think is grand
To Uncle Chap take off our hats—he's the man

Gray heads, black heads, brown heads, bald heads, three cheers
For our own dear Uncle Chap and his seventy-five years

To him we all wish to give a token
So with no more words and no more jokin'

We present to Uncle Chap this rock—

Then a nice easy chair was brought in and presented to him. A social hour followed. Games of all kinds were enjoyed by old and young alike.

On departing, all declared they had greatly enjoyed the occasion and wished Uncle Chap many happy returns of the day.

BLACK LACE BLOUSES FOR THE MATINEE—
Nothing smarter for afternoon wear at the matinee and in the tea room than a blouse made mostly of all-over black lace. These blouses are worn with the skirts of tailored suits and do not show unless the coat is removed. Other blouses of the sort are quite long and accompany straight black satin skirts, the whole costume covered by a full-length coat. Stunning is a blouse of all-over black lace with full bishop sleeves gathered into a narrow cuff. A jumper of black satin, piped with emerald green satin goes loosely over the lace blouse and is belted with green satin on which are sewed jet paillettes. The wristbands match the belt. A tunic blouse of black Spanish lace has bands of black satin at belt, hip and down the outer side of the flaring sleeve. Bracelets of red bacallite loop the sleeve to the arm.

U. S. T. AND AUXILIARY HELD MEETING—
The members of the United Commercial Travelers and the Ladies Auxiliary thereto, held an enjoyable meeting Saturday evening in Union hall. The meeting was preceded by a very tempting scramble supper. There were in attendance about fifty, all the guests greatly enjoying the happy evening. Games and music were features of the occasion and it was late ere the gathering dispersed.

FOR A SOUND IMMIGRATION POLICY

Our present emergency immigration law, which was to remain in effect for only one year, lapses July 1 next.
That would be the end of restriction
if congress did not in the meantime pass a new restriction law. It can not be doubted, however, that such a new law will be passed. The only question is as to the desirability and efficiency of the law. Several bills are already pending in congress. The most constructive of them is the Sterling bill, which embodies the findings of the studies of the national committee for constructive immigration legislation, of which

Dr. Sidney L. Gulick is executive secretary. "The time has come," says Dr. Gulick "for America to consciously take control of her own destiny by controlling the amount and kind of immigration to be allowed."

Our lawmakers are beginning to realize that there are periods when it is wise to admit them at all. Many begin to see that the laws should be flexible to meet industrial conditions without special acts of congress.

At the time like the present, when the number of men out of work is large, immigration authorities are coming to believe that there should at no time be immigration to add to the number of men seeking work when work is scarce. If workers are to be admitted in times like these, let them be experts along lines of industry in which experts are needed.

The present emergency law, limiting the year's total immigration to 355,825 persons, divided among the several nationalities according to percentage of these people reported already here under the census of 1910 has worked a hardship in the holding up of ships for the expiration of the monthly quota, also in bringing about of races between ships. Under this plan, the more desirable immigrant may be kept out because his ship is not as fast as the one which gets in ahead of him.

"What permanent immigration policy congress may adopt," says Mr.

Gulick, "that policy should grow out of the facts and experiences of our national life. It should be fitted to deal effectively with changing industrial conditions and also with the larger and more intricate problem of population composition and its wholesale incorporation into our body politic and national life.

"Our immigration policy should be thoroughly American. We should watch carefully the Americanizing processes and note how each people responds to their new opportunity in this land. Proper provisions should be made to promote Americanization
of every people in the United States, but the amount of immigration from each people be determined in the light of their proved ability to be wholesomely incorporated into our body politic. If they tend to develop and maintain undue group-consciousness, functioning in the body politic primarily as hyphenated Americans, or if they regard themselves and are regarded by their native lands as colonists and outposts, further immigration of these groups would seem to be undesirable.

"Immigration should be scientifically regulated. All the needed facts as to economic and industrial conditions, here and abroad, as to types of the racial groups already here and those desiring to come, as to the ease or difficulty of their assimilation and Americanization and as to their respective individual and racial fitness to do the desired work, should be scientifically gathered and rationally used in regulating immigration.

"It should be possible not only to admit the desirable, to the number desired, but also to refuse immigration beyond that point. It should be possible also refuse immigration altogether to types or groups about which there is grave doubt as to assimilability.

"Immigration should be directed to areas where the population is still slight, and especially to agricultural regions. It should be possible to restrain or even entirely to stop immigration to populous areas of seriously congested aliens still largely unassim-ilated and un-Americanized.

"The extent of immigration should be adjusted as economic and industrial conditions vary. We should admit as many assimilable immigrants as we can steadily employ without endangering normal American standards of living and labor.
This number will vary as industry thrives or is depressed, and it will also vary with success in the distribution of immigration."

Berton Braley's Daily Poem
Infantry Facts

The babies of these present days are raised upon a system.
You count their calories of food, and
on a card you list 'em;
They're spanked upon a schedule
and petted by the clock.

And you mustn't ever jounce 'em
and you mustn't ever rock; Physicians choose their style of dress and fix their hours of sleep And tell you when they ought to laugh and when they ought to weep.

Their every eccentricity is catalogued and filed,
For the modern type of baby is a scientific child!

Time was that mothers raised them
in a rather casual way,
With a bit of help from grandma—
but that isn't done today;
For the bringing up of babies is a far from simple art
And you need a dozen volumes and a blue print and a chart.

A clinical thermometer, a stetho-
scope, a scale,
Some test tubes and a dictaphone
that registers each wail,
The modern mother's regimen is very far from mild,
For the baby of the present is a scientific child!

Oh, the old folks sniff about it and
the jesters jest a lot,
But the modern type of baby is a healthy little tot,
He may be robbed of baby-talk, of many pats and kisses,
But there's a heap of colic and of other ills he misses;
And in spite of all the sentiment
that in our cosmos lurks There isn't any question that the modern method works,
For the scientific baby is a husky
little tad
A credit to the doctor, and the mother, and the dad!

A FIRST AID KIT

Common Sense Ways to Keep Well

Regrets are unnecessary if there is at all times a simple, efficient first aid kit or medicine kit handy.

In your first aid kit should be several bottles of drugs. Each should be plainly labeled. Names and uses of the drugs:

Iodine, a three per cent alcoholic solution. To be dropped into a wound
if the skin is broken.

White wine vinegar. In burns from alkalies, as plaster, potash, lime and ammonia, the parts should be flooded with vinegar, which neutralizes the alkali.

Boric acid, a four per cent solution in water. May be freely used in burns or injuries to the eye.

Aromatic spirits of ammonia. One-half a teaspoonful in water. In fainting after consciousness has returned or when one feels faint.

Jamaica ginger. A teaspoonful for chills, cramps or colic.

Bicarbonate of soda, a three per cent solution in water. For acid burns.
Epsom salts, four ounces (or half dozen Seidlitz powders) for use in constipation.

Further supplies suggested are:

Alcohol, 4 ounces, aqua ammonia-hartshorn, two ounces, labeled poison, rubber cork. Mustard powder, two ounces.

A teaspoon and several paper cups.

A medicine glass, marked with liquid measurements.

Half a dozen wooden tongue depressors and a few wooden applicators.

Adhesive plaster, a small roll, one inch wide.

Absorbent cotton, a two-ounce package.

Bandages, at least half a dozen rolls, one, two and three-inch widths.

Several packages of gauze, six inches wide and several yards long.

A piece of flannel, two or three feet square. It can be used, too, as a sling if necessary.

A dozen safety-pins of varying sizes.

A tourniquet to control bleeding.
For this purpose a piece of small rope,
twine or a specially-made rubber binder may be used. There are several very simple devices of this sort to be had at drug stores.

Surgical forceps will complete the equipment.

All these things should be kept in one place. If they are in a box or basket they can be carried to the place where they are needed.

YOUTH

BY DR. WM. E. BARTON.

There comes a period in youth when the young man or woman is very likely to feel a sense of isolation. The boy thinks himself a man, and can find no one who shares his opinion.

The girl thinks herself a woman and is troubled because she still is treated as a child. They grow sad and solitary.

Then they meet each other.
And that is a great event.

Each one discovers that the other,
also, is misunderstood.

"My father does not understand me; my mother does not understand me; the people with whom I associate are all stupid, cannot appreciate my high ideals; my teachers give us bad marks; nobody understands me but you."

"They come to understand each other so well that they cease to need language. They can simply sit and gaze into each other's eyes, or hold each other's hands, and they understand."

All this seems to all the rest of the world a very silly process. The rest of the world smiles and makes merry
over it.

But it is somewhat important process.

It is one stage in the return to normalcy; and that return has to be made over a new road.

It is not simply a disease of adolescence; it is a process by which a life discovers itself in being discovered.

WILLIAM F. BARTON.

Emerson has a chapter somewhere which, if you ever run across it, is worth reading. His remark about those two young people of whom we were speaking, is that thereafter
they become good citizens.

That is an achievement worth while.

CONFESSIONS OF A MOVIE STAR

CHAPTER LXVII.
LETTERS FROM GINETTE—TO DICK:

I had a wonderful time playing with the little leopard. It purred when I stroked it, and followed me around instead of Elsa.

I decided to become a trainer of cats, if an accident ever put me out of the movies. And I'd hire Dick. He had stuck so close to the net during rehearsals that he must have qualified as an assistant trainer.

The mail came to camp just as Mademoiselle Elsa and I finished rehearsing the leopard. There was a pile of it, dumped in a heap on a table beneath a huge maple where Cissy's phonograph ground out anybody's favorite tune.

With hammocks and swings, benches and pillows and the help of the carpenter, our art director had achieved a sylvan retreat fit for a stage setting.

The company called it "the dugout."

The R. F. D. always dropped the camp mail on the "dugout" table. You picked out your own. Letters not appropriated before dinner were distributed to the various tents before taps.

Mademoiselle Elsa and I hurried to run over the mail. There were several letters for me, the most precious being from Motherdear. And in the pile on the table were two scented envelopes. Ginette's distinctive handwriting. Both were addressed to Dick Barnes!

The oriental odor which clung to them made me ill.

Ginette—writing to Dick?

What right had Dick to criticize my conduct when he thought so well of Ginette—and she of him—that she was privileged to send him two letters in one day?

By what right did Dick watch my tent at night, and keep away snakes, big and little? How did he dare watch my rehearsals with Laski—as if he expected he would have to rescue me from the cat as he had dragged me from the fire set in the studio?

What right had Dick Barnes to be eternally and everlastingly rendering me fine service without ever giving me a chance to say "thank you?"

I threw down Ginette's pale pink envelope with a flip of the finger. I wished that I could as easily and with equal scorn flip Dick Barnes out of my mind forever.

It was wicked of him to keep the high wall of his silence between u-cruel to keep on pretending that ne-and I never had met except in the movies. He was, indeed, hard and cruel at heart! No wonder he could act the villain parts so well!

By the same process of reasoning Cissy, the hero, might resemble in real life the splendid characters he portrayed on the silver sheet. Not a few of the big stars were like that.
Their homes were widely advertised
examples of domesticity.

But such fame never could come to Cissy Sheldon, heir to millions. "Love Lorn" was to be his last film.

ADVENTURES
OF THE TWINS

A QUEER FOREST.

"I want you to see the balloon nursery. It's here in the woods."

Buskins pulled on the rein of the green paper elephant he had been riding and came to a stop.

Nancy and Nick, coming up behind him, stopped too and slid off.

Reddy Bounce and Blue Jumper, the fat jolly rubber balloons, arrive just then took charge of Nancy's pink pig and Nick's blue poodle.

"Now," said Buskins, straightening his head-kerchief and pulling up his high boots, which had become unsettled in riding, "I want you to see the balloon nursery. It's here in these woods."

The Twins were all curiosity by this time, for the Land of Lost Balloons was about the queerest place they had ever been in, and wonders were not to cease, to judge from the noise that was coming from the woods where Buskins was leading them, a forest of great rubbertrees like the pictures in the geography books.

But these rubber-trees were different because they bore such queer fruit—balloons, if you please, of all colors and sizes, yea, and shapes, too,

for where in the old days rubber balloons were all of a shape and round as moons, nowadays it's nothing at all for a balloon to look exactly like a large watermelon or a squash, or a string of sausages, and one I know of, my dears, had ears like a rabbit. Every kind of balloon was growing here.

But the noise! All babies were crying.

"It makes them grow," said Buskins. "All the balloon people grow here," he went on, waving a hand.

"And the babies are the squawkers."

"They make such a noise folks can't stand 'em in the city. Sometimes they cry so hard they fall off the trees, then they can't grow any more and they are sent to mortal children to play with. But I understand that mortal parents aren't fond of their noise either!"

DIXON BOY'S REPORT ON STATE SCHOOL FOR BOYS IS PRESENTED

Carl Sworm Tells Fine Story of Work at Annual School.

Carl Sworm, 612 Fellows street, this city, read the following excellent report of "The Boys' State Fair School," held at Springfield, last fall, during the State Fair, before the Thursday morning session of the Lee County Farmers' Institute held in this city at the Methodist church.

The report follows:
The Boys' State Fair School was established in 1910. The aim of this school is to offer to a well selected body of young men the means for a systematic observation and study, under the direction of competent instructors of the great agricultural, mechanical and educational exhibits of the State Fair which is held at Springfield and through such agency more fully to inform and interest the residents of their respective counties in the resources of Illinois and the achievements of her citizens as demonstrated by the displays on exhibition.

The members are chosen by a committee, consisting of the county superintendent of school, the president of the Lee County Farmers' Institute and the chairman of the county board of supervisors.

The school is under the control of a principal charged with complete responsibility and authority for arranging the program of study; for assigning the boys to their classes; for keeping a record of attendance, study and deportment and arranging the hours and classes for the various instructors. Each boy who attends the school is under the immediate authority and control of the principal.

The bugle sounds at 6 o'clock a. m. Then there are setting up exercises at 7 o'clock. The camp is then policed by the boys, then there is breakfast. There are usually four lectures in the morning and one in the afternoon. The forenoon of each day is given over to observation study and class work in the evening and a large part of the afternoon the boys are allowed to visit the fair grounds.

The school is formed into groups for the observation and study of the various classes of live stock, farm products and machinery and other displays on exhibition. Each boy is required to keep a record of each day's observation and study. The record will be passed upon by the assistant superintendent and principal. Each member of the school is expected to prepare, from his week's observation and study, a report suitable to give to the County Farmers' Institute.

The physical exercises are given by physical training directors who are chosen by the commission.
All boys who have acceptable grades are granted a diploma at the end of the session of the school. I think all good citizens of Illinois should always uphold the Boys' State Fair School.

Than Everything Else
Put Together," Says
St. Louis Man.

"During the past four years I have paid out a large part of what I made for treatment and medicines trying to get my health back and, it's a fact, Tanlac has done me more good in three weeks time than everything else I have taken put together," was the remarkable statement made recently by Philip Andral, 614 South Broad street, St. Louis, Mo.

"Before taking Tanlac I could not eat anything but what would ferment and cause me trouble, and I had no appetite at all. I would bloat terrible with sour gas and have such a tightness in my chest I could hardly breathe. I was habitually constipated, felt tired and worn-out all the time, and at times was unable to do any work at all.

"In almost no time after I started on Tanlac my appetite took on a good edge and I was back on the eating list. I have taken two bottles now and can eat just anything without having a particle of trouble afterwards. I sleep like a log at night, work every day, and have not felt so well generally in a long time. Just give me Tanlac and you may have all other medicines."

Tanlac is sold in Dixon by Thomas Sullivan and the leading druggists everywhere.—Adv.

The Standard of the World

Bill's bullet went straight home, ripping through the lungs, tearing the great arteries about the heart, shivering even a portion of the heart itself. And yet the grizzly sprang like a demon through the deep snow, straight toward him.

Virginia's horrified eyes saw his fingers race as he worked the lever action of the gun. The bear seemed almost upon him. And she screamed when she heard the hammer against the breech. Bill had fired the single shot that was in the gun.

Before ever he heard the sound Harold remembered. In one wave of horror he recalled that he had forgotten to refill the magazine with shells. Let leaping fast—red and deadly upon the heels of his remorse—there came an emotion that seared him like a wall of fire. He saw Bill's fate.

Here was his enemy, the man he hated above all living creatures, and the blood lust surged through him like a madness. In one wave of ecstasy he felt that he was about to.

In the hands of a brave and loyal man, the rifle Harold carried might yet have been Bill's salvation. Yet Harold didn't lift it to his shoulder.

But at that instant aid came from an unexpected quarter. Virginia remembered the pistol at her belt, and she drew it in a flash of blue steel. True and straight she aimed toward the glowing eyes of the grizzly.

At the angle that they struck, her bullets did not penetrate the brain; but they did give Bill an instant's reprieve. The bear struck at the wounds they made, then halted, howling in the snow. His roving eye caught sight of Virginia's form. With a roar he bounded toward her.

The next instant was one of drama, of incredible stress and movement. For all his mortal wounds, the short distance between the bear and the girl seemed to recede with tragic swiftness.

Virginia stood her ground, firing shot after shot into the animal's head. Because it was an automatic, she was able to send home the loads in rapid succession.

But Bill by now found one of the extra shells Harold had given him.

The grizzly was upon them. He dropped the shell into the gun. There was no time to raise the weapon to his shoulder. He pointed it instinctively toward the gray throat.

And the end of the barrel was against the bear's flesh as he pressed her trigger.

No human eye could follow the lightning events of the next fraction of a second. One instant and the three figures seemed all together. Bill crouched with rifle held pointed in his arms, Virginia behind him, the grizzly full upon them both.

The next, and Harold stood alone in the snow and the silence—awed, terrified, and estranged as if in a dream. Except for three forms that lay still, half-buried and concealed in the drifts, it was as if the adventure had never occurred.

The bullet had gone true. It had pierced the animal's neck, breaking the vertebrae of the spinal column, and life had gone out of him as a flame goes out in the wind.

Bill was first to move. He had received only a glancing blow; the drifts into which he had fallen were soft as pillows. He crawled over to Virginia's side.

He seized her shoulders and shook her gently.

Instantly her eyes opened. Her full consciousness returned to her with a rush. She was not scratched, not even shocked by the fall, and she reached up quickly for Bill's hands.

And instantly, with a laugh on her lips, she sprang to her feet.

"You killed him?" she asked.

"Bear's all dead," he answered cheerfully.

XIV

In the weeks they had been together, Bill had always been careful never to try to show Harold in a bad light. It was simply an expression of the inherent decency of the man; that he knew that Virginia loved him, and as long as that love endured and the engagement stood, he would never try to shatter her ideals in regard to him.

But Harold had a sickening and ghastly fear of the sober query in Bill's eyes.

"Why did you give me an unloaded gun and tell me it was full?" Bill demanded. "Except for a good deal of luck there'd been a smile on the face of the grizzly—but no Bill!"

"And by the way," he went on, as he waited for his reply. "I don't remember hearing your gun go off during the fray. You might explain that, too."

"I didn't shoot because I couldn't," Harold replied, earnestly. "At first I was between me and the bear—and then Virginia was. It all happened so quickly that there was nothing I could do. I can't imagine why I forgot to reload the rifle. A man can't always remember—everything. Thank God that it didn't turn out any worse than it did."

Bill nodded; the girl's face showed unspeakable relief. They gathered about the gray grizzly form in the snow.

"Does this—help our food problem any?" Virginia asked.

"Except in an emergency—no. He's an old, tough brute. Strong as mink and hard as rock. If we don't pick up some more game during the day, I'll hike over to my Twenty-three Mike cabin and get the supplies I've left over there. There's a smoked caribou ham, among other things. I'll bring back a backload, anyway."

Bill then announced he'd like to find the grizzly's den. He felt sure it was near.

But Harold had very special and particular reasons why such a course appealed to him not at all. "Yes—and maybe find a couple of other bears in there. I'm not interested, anyway. Go and look, if you like."

"I will, if you don't mind. Do you want to come, too, Virginia? There's no danger—really there isn't. If this had been an old she-bear we might have found some cubs, but these old males travel around by themselves."

"We'll be back in a minute, Harold. And if you don't mind—I'll take my own gun."

They exchanged rifles, and Virginia and Bill started back toward the fallen grizzly.

They back-tracked the bear through the snow and came upon the cavern mouth.

Back five feet from the opening the interior was dark as night; the cavern walls, gray at the mouth, slowly paled and faded and were obliterated in the gloom. Bill was puzzled.

"This cave—I've never seen a cave just like this, Virginia."

The man stepped forward and scratched a match on the stone. It flared; the shadows raced away. Then Bill's breath caught in a half sob.

Instantly he smothered the match. The darkness dropped around them like a curtain. But in that instant of light Bill beheld a scene that tore at his heart.

Against the cavern wall, long lost in the irremediable darkness, he had seen a strange, white shape—a ghostly thing that lay still and caught the match's gleam—a grim relic of dead years.

BUT AT THAT INSTANT AID CAME FROM AN UNEXPECTED QUARTER.

He turned to the girl, and his voice was almost steady when he spoke. "You'd better go out, Virginia—into the light," he advised.

"Why? Is it—danger?"

"Not danger." His voice in the silence thrilled her and moved her. "Only wickedness. But it isn't anything you'd like to see."

The single match-fire had revealed him the truth.

The thing he had seen was a naked skeleton, flesh and garments having dropped away in the years; and the grizzly had simply made his lair in the old shaft of his father's mine. Bill had found his father's sepulchre at last!

"I believe I understand," she said. "You've found your mine—and your father's body."

"Yes. Just a skeleton."

"I'm not afraid. Don't you want me to stay?"

"I'd love to have you, if you will. Some way—it takes a way of a lot of bitterness—to have you here."

He made another light.

They stood together, looking down at the skeleton. But she wasn't quite prepared for what she saw. A little cry of horror rang strangely in the dark shaft.

This had been no natural death. Undoubtedly, the elder Bronson had been struck down from behind, as he worked, and he lay just as he fell. There was one wound in the skull, round and ghastly, and in a moment they saw the weapon that made it. A rusted pick, such as miners use, lay beside the body.

"I won't try to do much today," the man told her, "except to set up one of my cornerposts and erect a claim notice."

He held the light close, studying the rear wall of the cave. It was simply a gravel bed, verifying his guess that here lay an old bed of the creek. In the first handful of stone he scraped out he found a half-ounce nugget.

"It's rich?" she asked.

"Beyond what I ever dreamed. But there's nothing more we can do now. I've made my find at last—but it doesn't seem to make me—as happy as it ought to. Of course, that sight—there against the wall—would naturally keep a man from being very happy. Oh, if I could only find and kill the devil who did it!"

He was setting his claim marks when Harold came munching toward them.

So intent were they upon their work that they didn't notice him until he was almost upon them.

"You've found a mine?" he guessed.

Virginia looked up, joyful at Bill's good fortune. "We've found his father's mine—the old shaft where the bear had been sleeping. But there's a dreadful side of it, too."

"Show me where it is. I wanted to see it. Take me into it, Virginia—right away."

They started together.
